

Bio

Michael Sheperek is a Coloradan. Raised in the small mining town of Rico on Colorado's West Slope, Mike moved to Boulder and graduated from CU with degrees in Biology and Electrical Engineering. He built a successful career as an expert in memory storage systems, earning over 40 U.S. patents in data storage and algorithmic development. Mike was a lead IP (intellectual property) developer for several prominent technology companies. A dedicated family man, a commercially rated aircraft pilot, musician, hiker, biker, cook, and mechanic — and is even considering building his own experimental airplane.

As a longtime resident of Boulder and now Larimer counties, Mike wants to bring back affordability, sustainable tax policy and preserve the liberties that are being eroded by today's one-party rule. This happens with cogent policies, properly debated issues and balance in the Colorado State Legislature.

Policy Priorities

- Restoring affordable house which includes smarter building practices, lower property taxes, lower insurance costs, all of which are out of control.
- Protecting children from creepy exploitative adults.
- Protecting parental rights which the state seems to think they own your kids.
- Defending Constitutional rights, the Bill of Rights and property rights, taxpayer's bill of rights (TABOR), all of which have been trampled on.
- A cornerstone of any productive society is clean cheap energy, and the methods to deliver it. The current appointed PUC board is off trying to eliminate clean natural gas, an imbecilic policy.
- School choice, including vouchers and charter schools. If people don't want their kids in a government school, they have the right to alternative choices.
